The key to answering exam questions is the comment ; “Use the sources and your own knowledge.” At all times remember to think of the following about these different question types. A.What does the source tell you? Always a short answer worth only 3 marks. Make at least three different points. B. How USEFUL questions can be worth up to 9 marks How Useful a source is, depends on what question you are asking of it. (e.g. How useful is source A (a poster of Hitler) for understanding why people supported him). Useful type answers must always consider why it may not be considered useful Always consider what extra information you may need in addition to that provided by the source. C. How do the sources COMPARE? And Do you AGREE (Disagree)? Can be worth 6-10 marks Read sources with care to find areas of agreement/disagreement. Extract evidence from the source and/or your own information to show how they contrast. D. How ACCURATE is the source? Worth 6 marks It is essential to assess the provenance of the source. Assess for bias. Contrast with other sources. Contrast with you knowledge. E. EXPLAIN May be worth 5-6 marks Show what you know. Look for the causes of an event. Remember that most events are the result of more than one event. F. What was the most important cause? Can be worth up to 15 marks Evaluate, and use your knowledge to judge the importance of an event Evidence suggests that revision over a longer period of time, visiting information again and again produces better results.
